Acupuncture Clinic Brandon - Magnetic therapy is a kind of alternative or complementary medicine that includes the use of magnetic fields in order to attain health benefits. Otherwise called magneto-therapy, magnotherapy or magnet therapy, the practitioners use the magnetic field of permanent static magnets or an electromagnetic fields onto the bodies of their customers.

Different health benefits are purported by magnetic therapy advocates. Though there is no scientific evidence to back these claims, some of the said benefits consist of increased energy, accelerated healing of wounds and increased vitality. Some practitioners say that various health benefits can be attained based on where the magnet is positioned on the body.

There are some believers and practitioners of magnetic therapy who think that without utilizing the magnets, individuals may be subject to a general feeling of unease, discomfort and illness, or that these people are prone to suffer from malaise. These practitioners define depression as "Magnetic Field Deficiency Syndrome," however; a lot of experts deny the validity of this condition. A lot of physicians and health experts completely deny the effectiveness of magnetic therapy all together.

Magnetic therapy is believed to increase overall health benefits by working with and improving the circulatory system. The blood protein which carries oxygen is referred to as hemoglobin and it is weakly diamagnetic. This means that hemoglobin could create a magnetic field in opposition to an externally used magnetic field. However, it is believed that the magnets that are used in products related and in magnetic therapy are much too weak to have whatever affect at all on the circulatory system or the blood flow within the body.

Although there is little to no proof that this particular kind of therapy provides any measurable health benefits, there are lots of individuals who practice and undergo magnetic therapy. Various people think that magnetic therapy works by way of a placebo effect, meaning people who partake in magnetic therapy only feel happier, healthier and stronger since they have been told that the therapy would provide them with health benefits.

The business is largely based on the sale of products which promise to provide the wearer or user particular health benefits. There are various magnetic products obtainable. Products comprise everything from water which has been magnetized to blankets woven together with magnetic material, magnetic mattresses, magnetic straps that are designed to fit all-around the midsection, ankles and wrists; magnetic shoe insoles as well as different kinds of magnetic jewelry, particularly bracelets.
